

THE EVENING CRITIC.

ESTABLISHED AUGUST, 1868.

THE COURTS.

Important Business for the Approaching Sessions.

The Circuit Court will be convened as a special law term on the first Tuesday in September, but the jury trials will not begin until the third Monday in October. Among the cases that will be on the trial calendar for the October term are: Young vs. District of Columbia, Lyons vs. District of Columbia, Lemont vs. Washington & Georgetown Railroad Company, the Northern Liberty Market Company's several suits against the dealers, Mueller vs. District of Columbia, District of Columbia vs. Evans et al., same vs. Clephane, same vs. Filbert and others, Bryan vs. District of Columbia, Sinaloa vs. Washington & Georgetown Railroad Company, Sayles vs. same, Herlihy vs. District of Columbia, Daly vs. Herlihy & Seaboard Coasting Company, Mitchell vs. District of Columbia, Beall et al. vs. Baltimore & Potomac Railroad Company, Louisiana State Lottery vs. Clark, Rheim vs. Washington & Georgetown Railroad Company, Melville vs. Baltimore & Potomac Railroad Company, Campbell vs. District of Columbia, Herring vs. District of Columbia, Yeatman vs. Washington & Georgetown Railroad Company, Ferris, by next friend, vs. Capitol, North O street & South Washington Railroad Company, Chappell vs. National Fair Grounds Association, Alexander vs. District of Columbia, At Lee vs. Washington & Georgetown Railroad Company, Ward vs. Washington & Georgetown Railroad Company, United States, ex parte Casparis, vs. Hitz and others; United States vs. National Bank of the Republic, Miller's Executors vs. Corporation of Washington, Connolly vs. District of Columbia, John F. Peyton vs. Baltimore & Potomac Railroad Company, Washington Hibernian Society vs. Thomas McMahon et al., First National Bank of New York City vs. District of Columbia, Hamsden vs. District of Columbia, In the Criminal Court, the only important case under indictment so far is that of Jas. Y. Christmas, for the murder of Whitney. Four other homicides have occurred since the Grand Jury last met, viz: Robert Orr and Frank Gallagher, charged with the murder of Stephen Tyrrell; Christina Taylor, charged with the murder of the Fisher children; Wm. Harris, charged with the murder of Joseph Banks, and Douglas William Cross, charged with the murder of James Curry. In addition to these cases will be the trial of the numerous indictments against John Hitz and Prentiss, directors of the District of Columbia, and the case of Guiteau, who came before the grand jury and an indictment was found, he will probably be tried at the next term of the court. The Howgate case will also probably come up. The next term of the Criminal Court promises to be the most important held for years.

Washington Light Infantry Corps.
At the conclusion of the weekly drill of the Washington Light Infantry Corps last night a meeting was called to consider the proposed trip of the corps to Yorktown on the occasion of the centennial celebration of the battle of Yorktown. Considerable discussion ensued, but the subject was deferred till the next regular meeting in order to obtain information as to quarters and other details. It is the intention of the corps to take one hundred men to Yorktown for accommodations can be secured for them. A communication was read inviting the corps to the Rockville fair, September 9, and referred to the executive committee for early attention and report.

No action was taken by the corps in relation to the challenge from the National Rifles to shoot for a trophy, as the question had been referred to the team for report at the regular meeting. The challenge was made by two regiments, well-known to the corps, had signified their intention of participating in the Yorktown ceremonies, and would arrive in Washington on the 10th of October. They were the First Michigan and Thirtieth New York, from Brooklyn, the latter of which has been championed by Henry Ward Beecher. The Roxbury City Guards, of Massachusetts, who entertained the corps when it visited Boston several years ago, was also coming, and arrangements were being perfected to give them a fitting reception when they reached Washington.

The Fair Board Meeting.
The board of directors of the National Fair Association met last night in their rooms in the National Hotel, the following members being present: Messrs. Blum, McGibbs, Baker, Duncanson, Claggett, Hoge, Clark and Browning. The meeting was devoted principally to the examination of bills and the payment thereof. Mr. Blackburn, on behalf of the owners, made large entries of odors from Frederick County, Md. Communications from dealers in agricultural implements, etc., were received stating that they would have specimens of their work on exhibition. A letter was also read from a glass blowing combination offering to show during the fair.

National Hotel Arrivals.
A. Brabrook, Mass.; G. W. Hall, Phila.; N. Whitesides, Mt. Vernon, O.; Geo. A. Morton, St. Louis; Hon. F. Hereford, Va.; Hon. J. Morrow, Jr., Va.; B. L. Randolph, Va.; J. F. Muncie, Balto.; J. B. Dr. Rhodes Transfusing Battery.
advertised in another column, is an article of real merit and is worth its weight in gold. It will positively do what is claimed for it. Money cheerfully expended to all using it a reasonable length of time if they are not satisfied. Mr. R. K. Helphinstine, the well-known druggist, Fourteenth and Patents—Ebbitt House—is the agent.

Received the White Veil.
In the chapel of the Academy of the Visitation at Frederick, Md., Sunday last, Mrs. Isabel Callahan, of the District of Columbia, was received into the Visitation order, took the vows of poverty, chastity and obedience, and received the white veil from the hands of Rev. Father Fladall, who afterward celebrated mass. Previous to the reception Rev. Father McCarthy delivered a short but instructive sermon, in which he dwelt forcibly on the benefits of a rigorous life, speaking beautifully to the young novice.

Extension of Time in the Christianity Case.
To-day before Judge Wylie, in Chambers, on motion of the counsel for defendant in the case of I. P. Christianity vs. Lillie M. Christianity, the Court ordered that the defendant's time for completing her testimony be extended thirty days from date.

Three Conundrums.
"Twice Harry was the silence broke:
"Miss Kate, why are you like a tree?"
"Because—because I'm bored," she spoke.
"Oh, no; because you're wood," said he.

"Why are you like a tree?" she said.
"I have a heart," he asked so low.
"My answer made the young man red."
"Because you're happy, don't you know?"

"Once more," she asked, "why are you now a tree?"
"He couldn't quite perceive."
"Trove leave some answers among a laugh,
And you can always love and laugh."
—Hull (Eng.) Bellman.

AFTER TEN YEARS.

John Ellinger and His Wife are as Youthful and Happy as When They Started Head in Hand.

The "tin wedding" celebration of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Ellinger, of 603 H street, celebrated last night under the happiest auspices, and of the two hundred and more ladies and gentlemen assembled within the hospitable mansion, none were more delighted or fully alive to the occasion than the good-natured host and his charming wife. There was dancing and music to coax the spirits of the guests, and good feeling predominated, interspersed with bits of rare fun generally inaugurated by the host himself, and kept in circulation through the agency of Grand High Priest George Scott and Right Worthy Knight of the Kettle Charlie Laird. The supper, too, which, like other features, bobbed up serenely during the evening, was a pretty one and the hands very toothsome, and many of the ambassadors of The Critic who was ensconced between two very beautiful young ladies—a thorn between two roses, as it were—felt as though he could have remained there all night. Indeed it was a rare pleasure for the scribe, even more delightful than catching lead out of a graveyard. Then there were the presents, tin of course, but varied, useful and numerous. Everything in the tin line, from a nutmeg grater to a bath-tub, was among the contributions to the happy host and hostess. The Critic made no contribution, but secured a solid footing through his superior knowledge of tinware, and rendered valuable service as inspector, preventing any bogus goods from being palmed off for the real stuff. Happily there was but one attempt to defraud, the offender being a reporter of the Republican, who endeavored to work in a tin colander for a hat box. Some of the presents and their donors, but by no means all, were as follows: Five toilet sets, all of different colors, from C. H. Venable, Thomas Shailer, Samuel Katzenstein, Clara B. Cassell, and C. Christiani; cake boxes, from Mrs. H. J. Wright, Mrs. Leathers, Mrs. Brooks, of Baltimore; Mrs. Mary Rife, of Middletown, Pa.; W. F. Roberts, and Orlando Jones; coffee-mill, bread-box, coffee and tea cans, Charles A. Laird; wash-boiler, Samuel McDonald; knife, fork, and spoon boxes, J. C. Addison, Samuel E. Giddings, and J. B. Jones; a fine waiter of Japan ware, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McKinney; an old man carrying buckets and a toothpick holder, Harry and Ella Ford; flour box, Charles Suter, of Baltimore; flour screen, Nathaniel Plant; washboard, Mrs. Edward Barrett; coffee urns, Dr. and Mrs. Franzoni; Mr. and Mrs. George A. Shaw, of Robert Willett, of Belle Isle, of Baltimore; Mrs. J. H. Hollister; chafing dishes, Edward Jones and Mrs. Haworth, of Philadelphia; farina kettle, Mrs. Craig, of Baltimore; ice pitcher, Kittle Moore; spice boxes of various designs, Mrs. John Bingham, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. McNeill, Mrs. W. O. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. W. Harrison, Ida M. Hicks and Thomas J. Hardnett; cuspisoiders, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Halleck; glass tray, Mrs. Hartnett; coffee mill, George Scott; tin fan, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Ford; cupboard, Messrs. Sanford and Colbaugh; pitcher and washstand, Mr. and Mrs. Keleher; egg boiler, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Anderson; graters, J. De Saul and wife; pans and crumb brushes, Mrs. John Pugh, Miss Mamie B. Wright of Philadelphia, Miss Kate Smith; ferry boat, Miss Joseph, with the hope that "while going down the river of life may never get out of stream."

John Downs intended to take a tin funnel up as his contribution, but in testing its usefulness on his road to the house, swallowed it.

It was not until this morning that the guests departed, and they did so somewhat reluctantly, for they had been most agreeably entertained. All, however, left best wishes and many of them behind for the long life and prosperity of Johnny Ellinger and his bonnie bride and bright brides.

Knights of Pythias Anniversary.
Washington Division, No. 1, Uniform Rank, Knights of Pythias, celebrated the anniversary of the rank yesterday with a grand excursion to Marshall Hall. Two trips were made, the first leaving at 10 a. m., and the other at 6:30 p. m. Before the departure of the Knights from their army Sir Knight Caldwell, on behalf of the Order, presented Past Grand Chancellor Hardin with a beautiful jewel, an emblem of his rank. The excursion was a grand success and was much enjoyed by all those participating. Among those present were: Mr. J. H. Rathbone, Mrs. Capt. Widdicombe, Miss Ella Landsale, Capt. Foote, Miss Walker, Mrs. M. C. Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Q. E. Mitchell, Mr. R. C. Glascock, Mr. W. H. Weyrick, L. B. Conner, E. R. Gargen, W. M. Stewart, H. W. Emborn, J. T. Caldwell, Miss Williams, Miss Johnson, Q. W. Thompson, E. T. Whiting, Miss Reagan, B. F. Evans, Mr. Freer, Frank Stewart, William B. Whiting, Mr. De Montgo, G. J. L. Foxwell, J. W. Gallaher, Robert Harden, Miss Deltrich, of Rockville; Mr. Smith, Mr. Fletcher, also of Rockville; Mr. Weyrick, Jerome Davis, Mr. Charles Reynolds, Dr. Roberts, Misses Leppard, A. N. Cronk, N. Bunch, Miss Moran, J. P. Smith, Halvor Nelson, J. G. Gibson, William Haslip, Mr. Carpenter, Mr. B. McWhorter, M. Shuster and R. W. Carter.

Construction of a Board of Health Ordinance.
Mr. Francis Carter was before the Police Court this morning, charged with depositing night-soil collected within the District of Columbia at a place other than that designated by the Health Officer of the District. It appears that Carter has been depositing his collection near Four-Mile Run, on the Virginia shore. The assistant attorney for the District claimed that under the District ordinance no night-soil collected in the District could be deposited in any locality other than that designated by the Health Officer, whether in or out of the District. The whole case turned upon the construction of section 15 of an ordinance adopted by the Board of Health November 19, 1875, which provides that it shall be unlawful for any person to deposit the contents of any privy in any place other than that shall be approved by this board, under a penalty of not less than $5 nor more than $50. The acts complained of were admitted and the defendant was fined $50. An appeal was taken. Judge Cuyper and Mr. E. C. Ingersoll appeared for the defendant.

Quarterly Conference.
The second quarterly conference of the Metropolitan M. E. Church was held last evening, the Rev. B. P. Brown presiding. The pastor and a considerable number of the official members being absent from the city, the attendance was small. Mr. Seesey was elected secretary. Dr. Adams, Rev. Mr. Riggles and Dr. King presented reports of ministerial services rendered during the quarter, and the conference adjourned. Mr. Brown reports the results from camp-meeting as satisfactory.

This is Venice's Roast.
"Another hot day," said a street-car driver on the Washington & Georgetown line to a representative of THE CRITIC to-day.

"Well, I should smile," answered the latter, mopping his face with his handkerchief.

"How do you account for it?" asked the driver.

"Give it up," said the reporter, and sweetly riding he rode on to his destination. Reaching a friendly telephone subsequently, he called up the Chief Signal Officer.

"General," shouted the reporter to Hazen, the Chief Signal Officer, with a big H, "What do you mean by giving us another solstice at this season of the year?"

"No fault of mine, old fellow, you know," was the answer: "This roast is one of Venice's."

"Then he has struck it again?"
"He has!" reluctantly.

"When will we have some rain?"
"Give it up."

"Good aft."

"Good aft."

Dropping the Standard.
The British militia companies have, almost without exception, given up the standard. At a recent general review of all the militia of the three kingdoms there was but a single pair of colors to be seen, and they belonged to the Ancient and Honorable Artillery of London. That organization exists so much upon presents and old memories that it could hardly be expected to abandon a regulation that has been in force for several centuries. The Honorable Artillery is not only the oldest volunteer corps in the kingdom, but is, with the exception of the Gentlemen-at-Arms and the Yeomen of the Guard, older than any other body in the army list. Parliament has no control over it, for it is governed solely by royal warrants, and is more closely connected with the sovereign than any other portion of the land forces. It is composed chiefly of infantry, with a couple of guns and a troop of cavalry. When the corps was formed, artillery signified any sort of missile weapons, and more especially bows and arrows. We read for instance in the Old Testament that "Jonathan gave his artillery unto the lad, and said unto him, Go, carry them to the city." The name of the artillery company, therefore, was not, at the time it was taken, a misnomer.

On the 25th of August, 1537, a charter of incorporation was granted to the archers in and about the city of London, under the title of Fraternity or Guild of St. George, and certain gentlemen were appointed "governors of the said guild and science of artillery, or long-bows, cross-bows, and hand-guns."

It was the commencement of the Honorable Artillery Company, which can boast of an unbroken existence of nearly three centuries and a-half.

A Child Chewing a Snake.
Little Louis Gassette.

Mr. Robert James, who arrived in this city yesterday from Chicago County, tells of a horrifying incident which, he stated, had just taken place in that county. A farmer returning at noon from the field, while passing through the yard, discovered his little boy, about one year old, sitting near the fence, with one end of what seemed to be a leather strap in his mouth, while with both hands he held the strap near the middle. Approaching, the father was horrified to find the child held a snake and the snake squirmed, but the little fellow pulled and closed his mouth so tightly as though he was trying to bite off the serpent's head. The father seized the child and tore the snake from his hands. The snake was of the black species, and might have wound its body around the boy and choked him to death. The child was teething and wanted something to bite, and in the absence of rubber or a pointed stick adopted the snake as a substitute.

Still Greater Reductions.
The announcement that the Fair Royal was closing out stock preparatory to making extensive improvements, was received with marked favor by the ladies of this city, who are certain to appreciate a good thing when it is offered. An active market for fancy goods was the result, and the summing up was so gratifying that a further reduction is offered. These special sales will be continued until the new store is ready, when there will be a week's grand closing sale, as everything in the store to be opened is to be entirely new, as far as possible, if generous advertising and very low prices can bring about the desired result.

The Wayside Well.
He stopped at the wayside well.
Where the water was cool and deep;
There were feathers from 'twixt the mossy stones.
And gray was the old well sweep.

He left his carriage alone:
Nor could he get a footman tell
Why the master stopped in the dusty road
To drink at the wayside well.

He swayed with his gloved hands
The well-weep creaking and slow.
While from seam and seam in the bucket's
The water plashed back below.

He lifted it to the curb,
And bent down to the bucket's brim.
No furrows of time or care had marked
The face that looked back at him.

He saw but a farmer's boy
As he stooped to drink from the bucket.
And rudely and taunted was the laughing face
That met his over the brink.

The eyes were so sunny and clear,
And the brow undimmed by care,
While from under the brim of the old straw hat
Strayed curls of chestnut hair.

He turned away with a sigh:
Nor could he coax him or footman tell
Why the master stopped in his ride that day
To drink at the wayside well.

—Walter Learned.

An Exciting Runaway.

A horse, the property of Bernard Cumberland, the well-known boat builder, shied this morning near the corner of Ninth and E streets, taking a sudden fright, and started on a furious runaway.

The horse and buggy flew up the thoroughfare at a lightning rate of speed. As they crossed E street the vehicle started completely over and throwing the driver out. Fortunately he was not injured, and he held on to the reins, preventing his own horse from galloping suit. The next object taken in his mad career was The Critic's office on Ninth street, which was standing in front of the building. It was only grazed, but the fiery, untamed steed of this journal, too ambitious to be passed by any other, started to enter the race himself. He was seized, however, by Frank Graft, and after a spirited contest as to which should have the say in the matinee performance, decided to remain where he was.

The runaway continued up Ninth street, and in front of the west entrance of the Patent Office came in contact with a carriage in which was Mrs. Henry Genning, the wife of Mr. Genning, of the Census Office, and her two children, smashing it considerably and overturning it completely. The escape of the lady and children was miraculous. As her startled horse essayed to run away he was captured by a young colored man, James Patterson, and a frightful calamity was prevented. The lady and children were removed to Vermilya's establishment, opposite, and it was found that by a fortunate chance all had escaped without injury. The youngest child could not be comforted, however, as its doll-baby had been broken past all mending in the general smash-up, and, forgetting all other things, she sat down and wept bitterly.

The grand finale to the impromptu spurt was at the corner of G and Ninth streets, when the last collision occurred. It was with one of Miller's Kennebec ice wagons. The ice wagon wasn't damaged, but the buggy was smashed into an utter wreck, torn completely from the shafts, and the fragments thrown by the violence of the impact completely around the corner. The horse evidently being satisfied with his morning's work, and having accomplished his objective point, the destruction of a buggy—concluded to take a rest and quiet down. We doubt if such a runaway on a crowded thoroughfare could occur again without injuring some one.

An Arm Dislocated.

Mr. Edward De Neale, while working on a shed in the rear of Mr. John Shelton's house, on Eighth street southeast, fell and dislocated his right arm. The young man was picked up and carried to his house on I street, where his wound was dressed, and the sufferer made as comfortable as possible.
